That Convention.

Being Advocated in Kansas.

Jewett, From Valley Falls and Arithmetical Hobby.

J. H. Foucht who taught school here from 1869 to about 1874, in speaking about the present state teachers' meeting this morning told of the first Kansas Teachers' convention he attended in Topeka in the Christmas holidays of 1870. At that time H. D. McCarty, atterwards state superintendent of schools, was advocating compulsory education at the convention. A Mr. Jewett, then superintendent of the Valley Falls schools, now of Abilene, had a great hobby in regard to teaching arthmetic.

"I believe about a hundred teachers attended that convention." said Mr. Fouch!, "We had no trouble to find rooms for them then. "Our sessions were held during the Christmas vacation in the Representative hall of the state house.

"I remember how Mr. McCarty read apper advocating compulsory education, and if I am not mistaken he was elected state superintendent of the schools on the strength of his hobby. And he worked the legislature to pass the compulsory law.

"Mr. McCarty was a big six footer and probably weighed over 200 pounds as I recollect him and seemed very good natured and jolly. I remember how much fun we had over him when a woman teacher from either Atcilson or Leavenworth described him dressed in women's clothes when she read a paper on the comparison of men and women teachers. No I do not remember what her name was but she was a bright wonant and women teachers. No I do not remember what her name was but she was a bright wonant and women teachers. "Another prominent man at the convention was a Mr. Jewett, then principal of the Valley Falls high school, now living at Abilene. His hobby was that in teaching arithmetic, the instructor should say 'seven of thirteen leaves six' instead of 'seven from thirteen leaves six' etc. He would illustrate this with apples. etc. and also told how a teacher in Leavenworth furnished an illustration of the truth of his theory. According to him the teacher held three matches in one hand, then took two in another and said to her pupils, 'When I took two of the matches from the three one was left,' but a little boy answered. 'Why teacher, you theory. Valley Falls man was also a great 'ladies' man and seemed to know how to make them smile. He after-wards became a book agent."
